Giafgoru, Uct. 31. 1786. A T a Meeting of the Incorporation of CORDINERS in Glaigow, held in confequence of the appointment of the Trades House, for the purpose of taking into consideration the alteration proposed in the Corn Law for the importation of grain, &c. into Scotland.

The Meeting considering the intended alteration of the said laws to be very hurtful and prejudicial to the trade and manusactory of this part of the country, unanimously approve of the resolutions of the Chamber of Commerce, and other foreities, for the opposition of said intended laws; and prove of the refolutions of the Chamber of Commerce, and other focieties, for the opposition of faid intended laws; and concur and agree to follow joint measures with these focieties in preventing the intended alteration from taking effect; and order these their resolutions to be published in the Glasgow and Edinburgh newspapers.

JAMES BURNS Deacon.

Trades Hospital, October 31. 1786.

PRESENT,

MAURICE MURRAY, DEACON, a majority of the Masters, and a number of the other Members of the Incorporation of Walgurs in Glasgow, called by previous warning of the officer.

THE Deacon informed the Meeting, THE Deacon informed the Meeting, that he had called them together, for the purpose of taking under consideration the Resolutions of a meeting of the Landed Interest at Edinburgh, relative to some proposed alterations in the corn-laws of this country, whereby it is proposed to regulate the opening and shutting of the ports by the prices of Mid-Lothian alone. After deliberating upon which, the meeting unanimously agreed to oppose the intended alterations, and appointed a Committee for the purpose of drawing up Resolutions; in name of the incorporation, upon the business, to be published in the Edinburgh and Glasgow newspapers: And which Committee having met accordingly, they manimously agreed to the following:—

18. That, as the success of the trade and manufactures of this country depends, in a great measure, upon having pro-accordingly, they maximosily agreed to the following:

If, That, as the fucces of the trade and manufactures of this country depends, in a great measure, upon having provision for the workmen at a moderate rate, it is the interest of all focieties, and ought to be the carnest desire of each individual in the kingdom, that the laws relative to the corn trade should be put upon a proper and impartial sooting.

2dly, This incorporation, however, much alarmed to find, that some of the landed proprietors in and about Edinburgh, intend to apply to Parliament for a new, or an alteration of the present corn law, which, however desective, the incorporation is assaid would be more so, were these gentlemen allowed to prevail.

3dly, This incorporation does not, by any means, presume to distate; but as it is evident indeed, and must be admitted by all parties, that this country cannot salie grain nearly sufficient to supply its own inhabitants, the incorporation is humbly of opinion, that a free importation of grain should be allowed at all times. Should the Legislature, however, be of a different opinion, and think proper to lay that importation under restrictions, the incorporation trust indeed, as a small body of his Majesty's subjects have a right to expect, that these restrictions will be impartial, and sounded upon principles of justice.

pect, that these restrictions will be impartial, and sounded upon principles of justice.

4thly, This incorporation, however, is humbly of opinion, that these principles will not be adhered to, unless it shall be provided, that the importation of grain into any county shall be regulated by the prices of corns in that county for the time; the most proper, and certainly surest shandard for ascertaining a plenty or a penury of corns in that place.

5thly, This incorporation, therefore, is determined, and will use every constitutional measure in their power, strenuously to oppose the alteration at present proposed by some of the landed gentlemen in Scotland, whereby it is intended that the importation of corns into any of the poorest counties of Scotland shall be regulated by the prices in one of the most sertile;—an alteration replete with partiality, illiberality, and injustice, as is self-evident in the proposition.

(Sigued) MAURICE MURRAY, Deacon.

THE Corporation of Tailors in Glaf-THE Corporation of Tailors in Glafgow, having taken under their confideration, the Scheme faid to be intended by the Landed-Interest of this country, for altering the law respecting the importation of Corn, and for making the prices of grain in Mid-Lothian the rule for importation into all the counties in Soutland, they came to the following Resolutions unanimously:

1. That in order to the establishment and prosperity of Manusatures in any country, the people must be pientifully supplied with the necessaries of life upon reasonable terms.

11. That whome manusatures are cliablished in a country, that does not raise as much corn as to supply its inhubitants, the deficiency must be imported from plentiful countries.

That this is the case of the watern counties of Sectland, where manusatures are extensive, and the imbabitants assured as a supply that the importation of corn after the price has advanced to a certain rate in these counties, the price of each country regulating its own importation.

Y. That to limit the importation to the parts of the poles.

tion of corn after the price has advanced to a certain rate in these counties, the price of each county regulating its own importation.

V. That to limit the importation to the rate of the prices of grain in Mid-Lothian, would frequently have the effect to reduce the western counties to a state of extreme distress before they could obtain relief in that way.

VI. That this would be ruinous both to the manusacturing and landed interests, us the manusacturers behoved to emigrate, and the isnd-holders would thereby lose the best and sarest market for their produce.

VII. That this Corporation will, therefore, heartily join in opposing the proposed alteration of the law with respect to the importation of corn and meal, and in continuing the law as it presently stands; though they are of opinson, that a free importation at all times would be most beneficial to all ranks, and they will contribute a proportion of the expence for preventing the said alteration, it necessary.

Lastly, They consider the whole country under obligations to the Chamber of Commerce and Manusactures of this city, for their early attention and just resolutions they published on this subject; and ordered the thanks of this Corporation to be prefented to the said Chamber. And they ordain these their resolutions to be published in the news-papers in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

JOHN M'ARTHUR, Descon.

PAISLEY, Ocrossa 31. 1786.

PAISLEY, OCTOBER 31. 1780.

THE different Corporations and Societies in this Town and Subburbs, viz.—Old Meffer Wesvers, Tailors, Hammermen, Mafons, Sboemakers, Flessers, Wrights, Bakers, Malisters, Gordeners, Old Junneymen Weavers, Maxwelton Weavers Society, Princes Fallory Society, Groft Society, Sandbale's Society, Pailley Aythire Society, Brewers Society, and Cumberland Fallory Society, having respectively met, and taken into their confideration, the intended alteration of the Corn Laws, were of opinion, That the Etheme proposed, (if carried into a law) will be attended with the most important and fatal consequences to this part of the country—That as outmeal is the chief substitute of our laborious and valuable mechanics, to adopt any plan that will have the effect of raising the price of this article at least oneseventh part, must of course, either advance the price of labour, and cause our valuable manusatures droop and decline, or render the fituation of this class of men truly deplorable.

They are very sensible of the strong and formidable rivalship which now substits betwist this part of the country and the manusacturers in Ireland.—If the Legislature should be so far milled, as to give a function to this proposed measure, they have every reason to believe, that our manusactures will be transferred to that country, where provisions are lower, and where every exection is made to draw our best mechanics to their aid.

When they reflect upon the great improvements that have

and where every exertion is made to draw our best mechanics to their aid.

When they reflect upon the great improvements that have been made upon the lands contiguous to this place, and what effect the encrease of our manufactures have had in susing the rents to the landholders, at healt three times their former value, they are greatly surprised, that any description of Landed Gentlemen in Scotland should-propose a measure so incompatible with their own interest, and that of the encrease of manufactures and population.

The respective Corporations and Societies, therefore manimosly resolved, thus publicly to express their high disapprobation of this measure;—that they will oppose the same, so far as their instance and power will go;—that they will chearfully join with the Magistrates and Town Council of Pailley, with the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures at Glasgow, and with the whole Manufacturing interest in Scotland, to oppose this pernicious scheme; and that they will contribute their share of the expence in prosecuting every constitutional and legal measure for the purpose of preventing the same being passed into a law; and they appoint their respective Prefers to sign these their resolutions, and that William Boreland, their Deacon-Convener, correspond with any other Corporation or Society upon this important subject.

FROM THE LONDON PAPERS, Nov. 4. Hague, OA. 28. The Prince Stadtholder has written'a very long and explicit letter to the States General, in which he complains heavily of the treatment he has met with by injurious and unmerited imputations having been laid to his charge, which have engendered fuch misconsidence, as to cause even fome of the States to agree to refolutions which have wounded both his honour and his reputation; that he has with concern observed that discord between the Regents and the inhabitants has been for fome time most artfully spread, and every opportunity ta-ken of representing his actions in a falle light, which has even been carried fo far as to endeavour to fet the whole nation against the Princess his Confort and his whole house, for which he has often (but to no purpose) required that justice which in a free country cannot be denied to any of its most incon-fiderable inhabitants; that, convinced of his own innocence, the purity of his intentions, and his love for the country, he looked with contempt upon all the venom poured out against his person, hoping that favourable opportunity might occur for him to juhimfelf; but that now, that things are gone fo ear to the accusations against him, it becomes necesfary that he should break silence. His Highness then goes on to justify his conduct, and to prove that he did no more than his duty in acceding to the request of the States of Guelderland, and fending the troops as they defired; that he was much embaraffed by the orders of four provinces not to employ the troops in their pay in any civil disturbances; that he communicated this to the States of Guelderland, and fo ordered matters that their troops were not employed, although some of them had taken the oath to the province of Guelderland; that he did not think that fuch prudent conduct could have brought on fuch confequences as for the States of Holland, in a letter of the 7th of September, to infift upon his declaring his fentiments in 24 hours, or that they should obliged to take disagreeable steps to himself and his house. This injunction struck him so much, that he could not fufficiently recollect himfelf to answer it in fo fhort a time; nevertheless he did answer it on the 8th, but fo little (he was hurt to find) to the fatisfaction of the States of Holland, that they enjoined him not to fill up any military yacancies till farther orders; and in a short time after he received a letter from them to let him know, that the troops were discharged from their oath to the Captain General, and that the resolution of the 8th of March, 1766, was !fuspended. These resolutions of the States of Holland, so dishonourable to him, induced his Highness to write to those States, requesting them to repeal them, but he had the mortification to be refused; he repeated his request several times but to no effect. These reasons, his Highness goes on to say, induced him to address their High Mightinesses, that they might impartially judge of the conduct he held relative to the contradictory orders of the different provinces respecting the employment of their troops. He adds, if their High Mightinesses will but for a moment confider the fituation which his different dignities place him in with regard to each province in particular, and the union in general, dig nities which are united under one head, in order the more firmly to bind the ties of confederation, they cannot look with indifference upon the misconsidence which fome provinces have flewn towards him, and the illegal resolutions taken in their affemblies. His Highmess therefore addresses himself to their High Mightihesies the States General, to obtain, by their influence, that justice he requires : He however repeats this, namely, that the fovereign power has an undoubted right to employ every means for his fecurity, when they have reason to doubt the fidelity of the Stadtholder, Governor, Captain General, &c. but his Highness does not think there are any grounds for it in the prefent case; and as most the present domestic troubles have his person for their object, he doubts not but by the efforts of their High Mightinesses, and each confederate; they will foon be appealed. His Highness confesses that his true welfare confifts in the effeem of the regents and inhabitants, but he also knows that the Republic has great obligations to his illustrious ancestors; and with regard to himfelf, he is ready to fpill every drop of his blood, and to facrifice every thing, for the country and its liberty; to which fentiments be will always adhere, and will endeavour to inspire his children with the fame, as well as his respected foouse, against whom the most calumniating venom has likewife been poured out, of which be might with justice complain, but he chuses to be filent. His Highness concludes with observing, that it certainly is his duty to maintain the privileges of all the States, and e-very class of inhabitants; but he has to require of them to respect his rights, which are inherent in the constitution, and which were judged to be most for the advantage of the Republic; and he finally hopes that their High Mightinesses will pay attention to his complaints and remonstrances, &c.

Utrecht, O.A. 28. We have accounts from Groningen, that a commission is appointed there to reform the abuses which have crept into the Government, and particularly that part of it which concerns the Stadtholderate. The above commission is composed of four members of the Council, two of the Tribunal, two of the Free Corps, two officers of the Burgher Council of War, and two deputies of the Burghers.

Utrecht, Od. 29. The affairs of the life-guards is finally fettled. The Prince has discharged them from the oath they took to him, and they have taken a fresh one to the Union. We are assured that they have been promifed a continuation of their rank and pay. Every one is curious to fee in what manner they will be employed in the fervice, as it is not very likely they will be left in a state of inaction : It is supposed they will be entrusted by the States with the interior guard of the palace, whilft they hold their affembly.

We have accounts from Amfferdam, that the merchants complain heavily of the decline of trade, and they purpose presenting a petition to the States-General, requesting them to use their utmost endea-vours to re-establish tranquillity in the provinces, as they look upon the divisions that agitate the republic be the cause of the declension of their commerce.

Their High Mightinesses have deliberated upon the contraband trade which the Americans carry on with the Dutch colonies in the West Indies. This was become the more necessary, from the precautions taken in the French and English colonies against the Americans, which might determine them to turn their fraudulent speculations towards the Dutch poffessions. The States-General have therefore resolved to give notice to the Directors of the West India Company of the faid illicit trade, defiring them to examine into the cause of it, and to point out the means to suppress it; and it was further resolved to request his Serene Highness, as Admiral Geneto request his Serene Figures, as Admiral General, to order some frigates and light vessels to be equipped as soon as possible, to fail to those colonies, to co-operate with the Governors to putting a stop to all unlawful commerce. It was also determined to defire the Directors of the East India Company to enquire into the illicit trade carrying on at the Cape.

Tangiers, August 25. The Emperor of Morocco fent orders to the Governor of this place to as-that, finding his feamen by their inexperience annually loft a vast number of his vessels, he invites that nation which esteems him most to furnish him with pilots and failors; that he should want ten men for each vessel, who were well acquainted with the navigation of the Ocean and the Mediterranean; that he will give them half as much more pay as they have in their own country; and that he means to fend his veffels to the East and West-Indies. All the Confuls made answer, that they would acquaint their respective Sovereigns with his request, and wait their answers. It is not, however, supposed, that the different powers will readily give into the views of the Emperor of Morocco, as he may not improbably make use of the abilities of the European pilots to continue the piracies of his corfairs with more fuccess. The Emperor has given notice to the English Consul that he should next year shew his flag in the American feas.

Torecilla of Camaro, Sept. 10. In the environs of this city we have feveral fubterraneous caves, appearing to be the work of nature, but which, till of ate, have been but little examined; for the ancient fuperstitious traditions deterred the common people from approaching them; and their depth, extent, and intricacy, subjecting the curious to lose their way, they declined all attempts to explore them. The architect D. Juan Antonio d'Oteyza, conductor of the buildings creeting for the Franciscans, his visited these caverns, of which he gives the following description:—In the millst of the mountain are four apertures opening toward the east; the first, which is the largest, has a difficult and dangerous passage, on account of the furrounding precipices; at the bottom is a grand grotto, fufficiently spacious to contain a thousand head of cattle; by another o-pening, day-light is admitted to the whole. Between two rocks of black marble there is a craggy passage to a still larger cavern, where the light is admitted to about 100 paces. The fides abound with the figures of different objects, confusedly disposed, and fusceptible of all the interpretations that imagination, terror, or prejudice, can give. This vault is fo spa-cious and high, that when lights are placed in the middle, the extremities cannot be perceived. There is another cavern of ffill greater dimensions, being an enclosure of near half a league, and it abounds with petrifactions: In some places the bottom appears tobe chryftal; in others there are columns of thirty feet in height, formed by water filtered through the roof, and chrystalized by time. - The operations of nature are extremely varied in this cavern : fin fome parts they refemble the chrystalization of fruits, roots, &c. with an exactness that might induce one to believe them the effect of art. is exceedingly pure in these caverns; which it is hoped will be visited by naturalists, that a more ample and compleat account may be given of them.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was almost the last person with whom the late Princess Amelia held any kind of discourse; this was on the Thursday morning previous to her demise, when the Prince fat near her bed-side above half an hour, and left her on the faculty coming to vifit. She took a very affectionate leave of him, telling him the thould never fee him more.

Yesterday Dr Warren and John Hunter, Efq; assisted by Mess. Horne and Bell surgeons, embalmed her Royal Highness the Princess Amelia, at her house in Cavendish-square, previous to her lying in Her late Royal Highness the Princess Amelia, we are assured, on the death of King George II. had formed a resolution to pay a visit to her favou-rite nephew, Prince William of Hesse-Cassel, who was then about 17 years of age; but, after confidering the indifferent terms upon which the Landgrave, his father, had lived with the Princefs Mary, and the resolution his Highness had taken to make an open profession of the Catholic religion, she altered her purpose, but constantly kept up an affectionate correspondence with the Hereditary Prince and his brother Charles.

The bulk of the Princess Amelia's property is in the confols of 1726, a fund which feldom comes to market. The sum lying in that fund is said to be 365,000 l. and this is, we understand, the product of the 120,000 l. left her by her father. - Such is the prodigious consequence of compound interest, coupled with a dextrous management of the fluctua-

It is faid the Princes Amelia's funeral will be on Wednesday next. The funeral expences of the Royal family are always paid out of the public purfe. Yelterday a number of carpenters, fent from the Board of Works to Cotton Garden, Westminster, began to prepare the frame-work for building the platform across Palace Yard, for the funeral procesfion of her Royal Highness the Princess Amelia.

Applications have already been made in the neighbourhood of Old Palace Yard, for rooms to fee the

The Precedent, as it mands, upon the late Duge of Camberland's death, is as follows: Stevenson, Mayor; 'Nelson, Mayor Elect, Nov. 1. 1765. The Lord Mayor acquainted the Coun, had caused them to be fummoned on account of the death of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, in order to consider whether any and what alterations might be necessary with respect to the manner of the next Lord Mayor's day; and after reading two precedents, the one on the death of Prince George of Denmark, (who died October 8. and was buried November 11. 1708) when it 8. and was buried November 11. 1700; when it appeared a letter was fent from the Lord Chamber-lain to the Lord Mayor, defiring the ceremony of Lord Mayor's day might be performed with as little shew as possible; and, in consequence, the said day was kept in a private manner. And the other on the death of his late Majesty, King George the And the other on the death of his late Majerty, King George the Second, who died October 25. and was interred Nov. 11. 1760; when the faid day (Lord Mayor's day) was again observed as private as possible.

November 5. (another Court.)

The Lord Mayor read a letter from the Duke of Portland, Lord Chamberlain of his Majesty's house, hold, desiring, That, upon the melancholy occasion of the death of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, the ceremony of the Lord Mayor's day might be conducted with as little shew as possible. The Court did unanimously agree and order.

That the Livery Companies shall not walk, stand in the streets, or pass in their barges on the water, on the next Lord Mayor's day. Also, that the Artillery Company shall not march, nor any firing of guns on land or water, or any other outward shew or rejoicings, heretofore accustomed, be permitted, or suffered to be made on that day, but that the fame be, for this time, wholly laid afide. And it was further agreed and ordered.

The waving all unnecessary pomp and state, the Lord Mayor Elect, accompanied by the present Lord Mayor, the Aldermen, and Mr Recorder, and attended by the Sheriffs, and the principal officers in coaches, the other officers walking on foot, preceded by the two City Marshals on horseback, shall pass from the Mansion-house to Westminster, and go directly to the Court of Exchequer, and there take the oath. Which being done, his Lordhip attended as before, having entered warrants of attorney in the Courts of King's Benc. and Common Pleas, as usual, is defired to recurn in the time manner to the Manfion-house.

The corpfe of the late Duke of Cumberland was interred on the 8th of November 1765. The Duke of Grafton was chief mourner, supported by the late Duke of Ancaster, and the present Duke of Man-

Thursday, Mr Alderman Sainfbury, the Lord Mayor Elect, attended by the following Aldermen, Wilkes, Newnham, Gill, Picket, Newman, Burnell, Boydell, Skinner, and the usual city officers, went in procession from the Mansion-house to the Lord Chancellor's, in Great Ormond-street. As foon as the company were feated, the Lord Chin. cellor came into the room, when Mr Rofe, whoattended in the absence of the Recorder, in a short speech informed his Lordship, that the citizens of London had made their choice of the Alderman above mentioned to a gentleman whose character and abilities would do honour to the fituation to which he had been called, and he had not the least doubt of his executing that high and important office to the fatisfaction of the citizens at large. The Lord Chancellor then faid, he was directed by his Majefly to fignify the approbation of the city of London in their choice of the Alderman fo elected. The cultomary ceremony afterwards took place of cake and wine, and the goblet being handed around, the health of the Lord Mayor elect was drank, and profperity to the City of London. The Lord Chancellor then withdrew, and the Mayor, Aldermes &c. went back to the Mansion-house. The Lord Mayor not attending, as is customary, the Lord Mayor Elect to the Lord Chancellor's house, or Thursday, it was supposed his Lordship was confe-

Though Lord Walfingham is appointed Minister to the Court of Madrid, his Lordship will not set out for the place of his destination till the fetum of Mr Eden from the Court of France. He is then to refign to that gentleman the place which his Lordship now holds of one of the Vice-Treasaren

A letter from Portfmouth fays, that fuch of the convicts who are carpenters, bricklayers, and fmiths, have been informed, that those of them who have wives will be permitted to take them over with them to Botany Bay, and that they will have timely no-tice of their going off, that they may fend for them to be there the day before the ships sail.

An order is given out for making a lift of the names of all the convicts that are to be fem to Betany Bay, with the year and day of their receiving fentence, and the term they are to be transported for, which is to be delivered to the Governor, that he may know when their times are up, in order to their having liberty to return to England by the first ships that arrive there with convicts.

Our East-India Company has been of infinitely greater benefit to the State, than to the proprietors of India stock; for it has expended those sums in making conquests, which must ultimately belong 10 the fovereign power of this country, that might have been employed in dividends to enrich the flockholders. The constituents of the British East-India Company divide barely the interest of their money, or very little more; but the constituents of the Dutch East India Company which was incomporated in 1602, have divided fome years from 40 to 60 per cent. apon their capital: Of late years, indeed, the dividends have fallen off through mifmanagement; but fo late as the year 1760, they amounted to 13 per cen and for the period of 124 years after the granting of their charter, the proprietors received on an average, one year with another, a dividend of full twenty four per cent.

in the support of foreign Ministers, and he was per-fectly well acquainted with the foreign affairs of the day. In the profeerous reign of Queen Anne, this article amounted to little more than 40,000 l. per annum. In the late Mr Pitt's administration, the annual diplomatic expence did not exceed 50,000 l. And to the Duke of Richmond two pictures. He has left 1000 l. to George Rogers, Efq; his late Secretary. An annuity of 50 l. his Lordship has bequeathed to a person named Park, one of his servants, and legacies to almost all his other fervants.

The bulk of his fortune descends to Miss Keppel, a natural daughter.

George Rogers, and Timothy Brett, Esqrs. are spointed executors.

This is the age of inventions!—Boats are now offered to the public, that will neither fink or overfet; and house-bells are so contrived, that, when they are rung, they convey the name of the fervant wanted, and tell what he is to bring with him.— How happy are we to live at fuch a pregnant period, when common mechanics produce contrivances, that a very few centuries ago would have been con-fidered as miraculous, or caused their inventors to be hanged as conjurors. In these " piping times of peace," while all the monarchs of Europe affect the same pacific pursuits of manufactures and commerce, and seem to forget the animofities which have agitated their kingdoms against each other for many ages; while they appear only desirous of contributing to the ease and happiness of the people over whom Providence has permitted them to become Sovereigns; great flanding armier mark, in a very emphatical manner, their mutual jealousies and ambition. This circumstance is one of the most distinguished characteristics of the times in which we live. About two centuries ago, an army, in time of war, was deemed formidable and immense, when it amounted to fifty thousand .- But at the present moment, there are four nations on the continent of Europe, who, each of them, keep in pay upwards of two hundred thousand horse and foot, with fuitable trains of artillery and camp equipage, in times of profound tranquillity. Art, in this age, brings back matters to a fimilitude to the slate of afbrings back matters to a fimilitude to the flate of ar-fairs, when numerous armies poured forth into the field under warlike chieftians, in days of rudeuels and barbarity. It may be questioned, however, whether large standing armies do not, in reality, tend to maintain the peace of Europe, in the same manner that mutual civility is preferved among gen-tlemen, by the alacrity with which every man of charaster and longur is expected to desend his good character and honour is expected to defend his good name, on every occasion of insult and provocation.

By private letters received yesterday evening by the Dutch mails, we hear, that it is at last agreed to appoint a meeting of feveral Deputies on the part of the Prince of Orange, their Noble Mightinesses the States of Holland, and other members of the Union, for the purpote of forwarding the reconciliation of all parties. The mediating powers are, though not publickly acknowledged, the Kings of France and Pruffia.

His Majesty of Prussia keeps a watchful eye upon the motions of their High Mightinesses the States General; and they, on their part, act warily to-wards the Stadtholder. Frederick feems resolutely determined to support his relation the Prince of Orange, and the crafty Hollanders have too much at stake to provoke a quarrel. It is therefore the opinion of most people at the Hague, Amsterdam, &c. that an amicable accommodation will be the ultimatum of the contest.

The King of Prussia has left behind him a vast number of manuscripts on different subjects in profe and verse, which are carefully deposited among the archives; nay, so fond are the people of preserving every thing that may ferve as a memorial of their he-to, that they have even treasured up the copy-book in which Frederick the Great, when a child, made his first essays in the art of writing.

Anecdote of the late King of Paussia.—Frederick, whose chief pleasure was in the proficiency of his troops in military discipline, whenever a new soldier made his first appearance in the guards, asked him three questions. The first was, How old are you? The second was, How long have you been in my fervice? as the guards were recruited out of the flower of the marching regiments. And the third was, If he received his pay and his clothing as he wished? A young Frenchman, who had been well disciplined, offered himself to enter the guards, where he was immediately accepted in confequence of his experience in military sasties. The young recruit did not understand the Prussan language; and his Captain informed him, that when the King faw him first on the parade, he would make the u-fual enquiries of him in the Prussian language, therefore he must learn to make the fuirable answers, in the form of which he was instructed. As foon as the King beheld a new face in the ranks, taking a lufty pinch of fnuff, he went up to him; and, unluckily for the foldier, he put the fecond question first, and asked him, " How long he had been in this fervice?" The foldier answered, as he was in-ftructed, "Twenty one years, an please your Ma-jesty." The King was struck at his figure, which did not announce his age to be more than the time he answered he had been in his service. "How old are you?" says the King in a surprise. "One year, an please your Majesty." The King, still more surprised, said, "Either you or I must be a fool!" The soldier, taking this for the third question, rela-The foldier, taking this for the third question, relative to his pay and clothing, fays, "Both, an pleafe your Majefty." "This is the first time," fays Frederick, still more surprised, "that I have been called a fool at the head of my own guards." The foldier's stock of instruction was now exhausted, and when the Montech still pursued the design of unravelling the mystery, the soldier informed him, "that he would focal to more German, but that he would he could speak no more German, but that he would answer in his native tongue." Here Frederick perceived the nature of the man's situation, at which he laughed very heartily, and advised the young man to apply himself to learning the language of Prussa, and mind his duty.

line, feveral years fince, when the Princes Amelia was in it; the Queen hinted to Amelia, that it was a favourable opportunity to make a fpeech to them. On this the Princess letting down the glass of the carriage, began " Myne peoples, we be come there for your goods." - " Yes, damn me," replied a fellow in the crowd, " for our goods and chattles too!"

Anecdote of the Princefs Amelia.—A few years fince her Royal Highness being of a card party at one of the rooms in Bath, a Scotch Gentleman leaned over her chair, and observing her snuff box open on the table, applied to it repeatedly without asking leave, or receiving any answer to his encomiums on its contents. The Princess at length called one of her atterdants, and defired him to fill her box.—

"It is full already, Madam." "Neure moind

dat," replied her Royal Highness, "don't you fee dat it is contaminated?" The reproof was felt, and the gentleman disppeared immediately.

Extract of a letter from Paris, Od. 27.

"The following anecdote, which is too remarkable to be passed over unnoticed, is handed about here as a fact :"The house of a Greek, living in the suburbs of Conftantinople, had been fet on fire. By the affit-ance, however, of a few Janissaries, be had nearly faved all his goods; but, by some fatal chance, one of his children, lying in the cradle, had been forgot. No poshbility was left of re-entering the house, and the despairing father had given up the babe as irrecoverably lost. At that very instant, a large mashiff, the property of the Greek, was seen coming out of the house, holding the child in his mouth by the body. Vain were the attempts to stop or make him loofe hold; the fagacious creature ran through the crowd, and never ftopped till, reaching the home of his mafter's intimate friend, he dropped at the door the precious burden. The gratifude of the father towards this excellent fervant cannot be expressed. fed; nor could you imagine what reward he refolved to bellow upon the faithful creature. Hear it then.

The Greek killed the animal with his own hand, and had the carcase dressed, which was served up as a principal dish at an entertainment he had prepared to folemnize his child's lucky escape from the deyouring flames: Saying, " He has behaved too well to be left a prey to filthy worms -men alone should feed apon his remains; and ye, my guests, cannot but profit by it. You will grow more benevolent, feeling, and virtuous."

EDINBURGH.

Extract of a letter from London, Nov. 4. " It is faid, that a treaty has been concluded betwixt the Portuguese, America, and Venice, against the States of Barbary.

"They write from Lifbon, the 21st ult. that a courier had lately arrived at Ferrol from Madrid, with dispatches for England. Two hours after his arrival, a packet-boat put to fea to carry them to Falmouth, from thence to be forwarded as foon as possible to London. It is believed these dispatches relate to a treaty very recently concluded and figned between Spain and Great Britain.

" The death of the Princels Amelia has not only fuspended every place of public amusement, but in a manner put an end to all public business; so that at manner put an end to all public bulinels; to that at prefent every thing feems stagnated, and will most probably remain so till after her suneral, previous to which she will see in state. Meanwhile his Majesty, together with the Royal Family, is retired at Windfor, and the Minister is on a visit to his mother, the

"Agreeable to the opinion formed by our politicians for some time past, that all differences between the Prince Stadsholder and their High Mightinesses. would be made up, it is now very confidently afferted, and that by the immediate friends of Government, as well as by those in the considence of the Ambahadors of France and Spain, that nothing more than the mere forms of it are wanting, each of the parties having appointed their deputies for the purpose of accommodating all matters, so that in all probability the peace of Europe will no longer be endangered by the civil broils of the Dutch, who begin to think seriously of their disputes, from which their trade and commerce have much suffered, and which threatened to involve them in a war. The which threatened to involve them in a war. Prince Stadtholder's letter, however, which has led to this disposition for a reconciliation, is thought a very thumiliating piece of writing, and what his Highness would never have submitted to, but that it was dictated by those powers who have stood for-ward as mediators on the occasion.

" It is confidently reported, that fome very ferious obstacles, in the way of the treaties forming between Great Britain and the Court of Petersburgh, &c. have been occasioned by one in negociation be-tween Prussia, Russia, and the Emperor of Germa-ny, which is faid to militate very much against the

"The report of a proposition on the part of Great Britain for an union with Ireland, daily gains ground. This much is certain, that Ministry have lately had conferences with several leading men of that country on the subject. It is nevertheless thought to be too ftrong a measure to be attempted at present."

Died here, the 2d current, Thomas Glen, Efq; late physician in Edinburgh.

William Smith, Efq; member of Parliament for Sudbury, and Captain John Schank of the Royal Navy, and fenior officer and commissioner of his Majesty's sleets in the lakes and rivers in Canada, had this day the honour of being unanimously admitted Burgesses and Guild brethern of this city, by the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council.

John Palmer, Esq; Inspector and Comptroller-General of the Post Office, is now on his way to this city, in order to fettle the conveyance of the mail between this and London on his new plan, which has already taken place as far north as York.

Last night, a gentleman was attacked by three fellows in the High Street, a little below Bridge street, one of whom cut his face in a most shocking manner with a knife. The wound entered a little below the right eye; and though it is expected the sight may be preserved, yet the wound is of such a nature as must for ever dissignre the gentleman's face. The perpetrators of this cruel and wanton attack have not yet been discovered; but it is hoped they will not long be able to screen themselves from the punishment they so justly merit.

We hear, by Caprain Aikman, of the Sisters of Grangemouth, who arrived there the 6th instant, from Petersburgh, that the Mary of Leith, Johnston mafter, from Petersburgh, was on shore on Sea Scar. The crew, with fix failors, passengers, are saved. It is expected the vessel will be got off the Scar, with damage. The fix sailors, passengers on board, belonged to the Empress of all the Rushas, Stratherin mafter, from Carron, who had b an discharged at Petersburgh, the vessel being sold there.

We hear from the north, that, on the 14th ult. the Magistrares and Town Council of Nairn unanimously approved of the plan now in agitation for uniting the King's and Marischal Colleges of Aberdeen into one University. We are also informed, that, on Monday the 30th ult. the Magistrates and Conneil of Forces, by a public act, declared their unanimous approbation of the proposed union of the Aberdeen Colleges, as an arrangement highly worthy of public countenance and support.

The Justices of Peace of the county of Aberdeen Colleges, as an arrangement highly worthy of public countenance and support.

deen lately determined a complaint and information deen lately determined a complaint and information on the game-act; and as it may be of use to caution the unwary, we give the following summary of the affair: The complaint was brought by John Grant, forester to the Right Hon-the Earl of Fife, against Francis M'Donald, son of John M'Donald, in Miltown of Inverceuld, for carrying a gun in the forest of Mar, without having a license or certificate, as required by the statute. Witnesses to prove the fact were duly summoned. One of them, however, thought six to absent himself from the Court, on a frivolous excuse of a trisling informality, and on a frivolous excuse of a trifling informality, and was fentenced to be fined in ten pounds Sterling. The fact being clearly proved by other witnesses, M'Donald was fined in twenty pounds Sterling; and the Justices awarded, that in case their fines were not paid within fix days after charge should be given them, their goods are to be poinded, and fold for the fine; and if sufficient goods be not found, granted warrant to imprison them three months in the jail of Aberdeen. The clause of the act on which M'Donald was convicted, enacts, That if any person or persons shall use any greyhound, hound, pointer, setting dog, or any gun, net, or other engine for destruction of game, without certi-ficate in manner therein directed, every such person shall forfeit 20 1. Sterling. We are forry to hear, that the thip Whale Fisher of Hull was left in the Greenland feas, fast in the ice, with all the crew on board, when the last ships left the country, and there is every reason to fear they would be obliged to remain there during the winter. Another ship, belonging to the port of London, was left in the country, and has not yet been heard of; but it is imagined she has been carried by the crew, who were mutinous, to some part of America.

Extra? of a letter from Dublin, Off. 26. of the expence of revenue cruifers and aimed veffels, for two years, but no meetion hath been made whether the advantages accruing to the nation from those vessels have been adequate to the expense.

"We find by this return, that there were ten cutters, and ten armed barges; that they carried 138 guns to fwivels and 6 cohorns, with 390 men, and cost in the two years the sum of 35,320 ls 25.9 d. that is 17,660 l. 1 s. 4½ d. a year. The public should know what seizures were made by thefe cruifers; and the total value of those feizures.

"We have also a return of the fishing vessels that have obtained the bounties, which for one year amounted to 21,233 i. 17 s. 6 d. Some of these yessels, it is true, caught fish, some little, some lessy and some none at all. We shall mention some of

The Expedition of Wicklow received 35 la 13 s. 4 d. bounty, and caught only 107 cod; -fomewhat more than fix shillings and fixpence three farthings bounty on each cod.

"The Patrick and Catherine, of Drogheda, received 26 l. 4 s. and did not eatch a fingle fish of any denomination.

"The Three Friends, of Galway, received 79 la bounty, and caught only 4 barrels of herrings, 3 hake, 1 ling, and 20 cod.

"The Mary, of Baltimore, had 43 l bounty, and caught one and a half barrel of herrings, 32 hake, and 58 cod. "The John and Thomas, of Malahide, had 34 l. 2 s. bounty, and caught 13 barrels and a half of the rings.

"The Catherine and Margaret, of Killibegs, had the bounty of 95 l. and took but one barrel of herrings, 27 ling, and 128 cod.

"The Molly, of Strangford, had 32 l. bounty for catching 110 ling;—near 5 s. 1 d. for each ling.

"The St Patrick, of Newry, received 90 l. and caught—nothing.

"The John and James, of Strangford, had 25 l.
3 s. 4 d. for 125 ling, and one cod.

"The Mercury, of Dungarvan, had 24 l. for 5 hake, 77 ling, and 27 cod.

"Many more might be mentioned; but from these only we may remark, that these vessels were either very lucky in catching the bounty, or very un-lacky in not catching sish.

"The generality of boats fitted out on the west coast for the herring fishery, are by no means adapted for the purpose. The coasts of Sligo and Mayo, as far as Broadhaven, abound with fish, and, throw the above defect, little advantage is made of this gift.

"Remidence. Were men of property to enter spiof Providence. Were men of property to eater spiritedly into the business, their industry would be repaid sifty fold. At present, it is to be lamented, the fiftery is for the most part in the hands of peo-ple whose poverty is so great, as to prevent it being of any effential benefit to the community; and so miserably descrive are they in tackle, that on the Turbot banks, which fwarm with that excellent fifth, they have no other method of taking them but with

Extract of a letter from Cork, OA. 29.

"Last Wednesday night the Whiteboys appeared in the South Liberties of this city, mounted and armed, broke open all the fields on the Blackrock, Upper and Lower Douglas and Evergreen roads, took out the horses and abused them in a dreadful manner. They searched all the cabins for saddles and bridals, levied contributions of half a guinea on each house, and swore others to pay in that sum to a certain place, for the use of their suffering brethren in each.

TO BE SET IN LEASE,

THE Farm of Cobblebrae, along the fide of the river Carron, and immediately adjacent to Carron works. This farm has ever been reckoned one of the best situations in the Carfe, from its vicinity to Carron best situations in the Carse, from its vicinity to Carron works, Falkirk, and Bainsford, where it commands a ready market for every produce of a farm. It is particularly adapted for carrying on an extensive brewery, having perfect command of water, and lying in the heart of a country well known to produce large quantities of the best of barley. The present prospect is very inviting, as the nearest brewery of any extent is Linlithgow, from which and Glafgow the country around is now mostly supplied with ale, we say the state of the second supplied with ale, we say the second supplied with all sup

SALE OF MOLLANCE,

Adjourned to Monday, November 20. 1786,

At the Desire of intending Purchasers.

To be SOLD by public roup or auction, within the Old Exchange Cose-house, Edinburgh, on Monday the 20th November 1786, betwirt the hours of five and six in the afternoon, The Lands and Estate of MOLLANCE, with the teinds, lying in the parith of Crosmichael, and stewartry of Kirkendbright, comprehending the following lands, viz.

Mains of Mollance and pendicles, Erne-Annady, and Flat Moor of Moat Park, Chaplerne, Dubbydale, Halferne and Moor of Moat Park, Chaplerne, Dubbydale, Halterne and pendicles, Upper Ironambry, Upper Clarebrand, Nether Clarebrand and pendicles, Garrington, Blackerne and pendicles, Little Dryburgh, Dunjarg, Meikle Dryburgh, Hillowtown and pendicles, and Chapmantown containing in whole above 2336 acres Scots statute mea-fure: and the free rental whereof, after all legal deductions, is 1166 l. 16 s. 5 d.

This effate is fituated within twelve miles of Kirkend-bright, on the great military road to Ireland. The houfe is modern, large, and consider repair.—There is an excellent pigeon cot, and fish-ponds well stocked with carp, tench, and perch, with falmon, trout, and perch fishing in the river orn and lochs adjacent. The fituation is fine, command-ing very extensive prospects of the adjacent country, which is remarkably pleasant and well cultivated, and plenty of game in it. There are about 50 acres of wood in the policy, part of which is full grown, and part lately planted and all in a most thriving condition, which, with the wood upon other parts of the estate, is estimated at above 500 l. Ster.

The sertility of these lands is too well known to need description, and they are occupied by a fet of as wealthy industrious, and intelligent tenants as any in that country, and the uncommon punctuality with which the rents are paid is the best proof of the lands being fet at moderate rents. They are capable of great improvement, by means of shell-marl, of which there is great abundance within the lands and in the neighbourhood. Coal and lime are the lands and in the neighbourhood. Coal and lime are brought by water carriage, within four miles of the pre-miffes, where also the produce of the lands may be export-ed. A lime quarry is just opened in the neighbourhood. The lands are all inclosed and subdivided, and the farmsteadings are all lately built, and in the best repair.

James Carter, overfeer at Mollance will show the premisses. For further particulars apply to James Stormonth, writer in Edinburgh, or to the proprietor at Blackwood

To any person wishing to form a considerable interest in that part of the country, this effate must be a desirable object, as it affords eight undoubted qualifications for electors of a member of Parliament. JUDICIAL SALE OF LANDS
